

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A system and method for receiver automatic gain control (AGC) adapted to provide a feedback signal having improved stability is described herein. The system and method includes taking plurality of samples of received signal, calculating power for each of the plurality of samples of the received signal, and computing an average value of the calculated powers. An appropriate feedback signal based on the computed average value may then be generated.

080398.P380